MONDAY BYENING, JULY 16.

THE CHASTITY OF COSSACK WOMEN. - These Cossacks have some very curious customs. They are all comparatively young men, and nearly all married, of course, to young wives. It often happens, as in the present instance, that they are away from home during a war for one or even three or four years, and the natural result is that many of the wives left behind do not prove to be Lucretias. The Cossacks are quite aware of this, and many of them, upon starting home, buy a white scarf or handkerchief, which they take with them. Upon entering their villages, the whole populationwomen, girls, old men, and children-come out to meet them, including, of course, the wives of the returning wanderers. Now, those of the wives who have been unfaithful to their lords, of which there is usually a considerable sprink ling, go forward to their husbands, kneel down before them in the road, put their faces in the dust, and place their husband's foot upon their neeks. This is a confession of guilt, and at the same time a prayer for forgiveness. If the husband then covers his wife's head with the white scarf, it means that he forgives her, asks no questions, and obliterates the past. In this case no one has a right ever to reproach the wife with her incontinency, and if any one should be rash enough to do so he would have to count with the husband, who is the pro-tector of his wife's honor. If, on the contrary, the white handkerchief is not produced, the woman returns straight to her father's house without again entering her husband's dwelling, and a diverce is pronounced. Although there is generally a considerable sprinkling of woman who come forward to kneel down and put their faces in the dust, it rarely happens that they are not forgiven. A very tragical case, however, is related in which the reverse took place. A returning Cossack was informed by a malicious neighbor before he reached his home that his wife had been unfaithful, without waiting to see whether the woman would come forward and confess her sins. The comrades of the Cossack perceived that he had all of a sudden taken to drink and dissipation, although he was not a man given to these vices. When he reached his village, his wife, as he feared, came forward, knelt down, and put her face in the dust at his feet. The spectators saw him look at her as she lay in the dust for a long time. Two or three times he put his hand in his breast for the white handkerchief, as if he were going to cover the repentant woman's head-two or three times the movement was restrained. Finally, as it driven by a sudden impulse, he all at once drew his shashka, and with one stroke severed her head from her body. The punishment for the crime was two months' imprisonment, while the malicious neighbor who had taken the trouble to inform him beforehand of his wife's misconduct was sentenced to Siberia for three years. -N.
